Let's get started

It's already warm at Kevin's studio in Phoenix

'THERMAL PHX' SHOW OPENS IN DOWNTOWN PHOENIX

Even as temperatures top 100 degrees in Phoenix, things are happening in the Arizona art world. With its burgeoning collection of galleries and as many as 10,000 people in the streets for events, some rank downtown Phoenix scene as one of the most vibrant in the country.

On Friday, June 7, Kevin's sculptures Dorothy's Nightmare and CounterSink (below left) debuted at the show "Thermal PHX" at MonOrchid, one of downtown Phoenix's most venerable galleries. "I'm pleased with the response to these sculptures thus far," says Kevin. About 250 people attended opening night. The sculpture Rush will also appear in the show.

The show runs through the end of August. Kevin will be in attendance for several Friday evenings during the show, including the opening on Friday, June 7. He looks forward to seeing you at MonOrchid, a converted warehouse originally constructed by legendary builder Del Webb in 1937. Other appearances include July 19, August 2 and August 16 (all Fridays).

For a map to MonOrchid's location at 214 E. Roosevelt in the heart of Phoenix's gallery district, please visit the Events page.

KEVIN TO FILM VIDEOS WITH WELD.COM

participate a new discussion board on the site Weld.com. "I frequent a number of other boards as well as moderating my YouTube channel, so this appealed to me," says Kevin.

Now Kevin is going to film some videos with Weld.com's "Mr. TIG."

So Kevin will be stopping in Winfield, Kansas, on his motorcycle trip back from the East Coast in July to film as many videos as possible in two days. "This should be a lot of fun," says Kevin.

Keep an eye out for these videos on Channel Kevin.

PROJECTS UNDER WAY IN THE STUDIO

Kevin is also working on two new sound sculptures. "I created both bells, with their clappers and hanging rings, at once," Kevin explains. "Now I'm working on the stand for the first sound sculpture." See the stand in process on the sculptures' own page.

Several new ocotillos and Shitake Agaves are under way, too. "These sculptures are particularly interesting to people who live in the desert and know these plants," Kevin observes, "although I have sold them to people around the country. They are also easy to care for - no watering, pruning, etc."

Kevin also is working on some new versions of the Street Urchin form. "The texture of this form really resonates with people - including me!" See the new
